Alzheimer's Society at Labour Party Conference

Thank you to everyone who has contacted me asking that I visit Alzheimer's Society's exhibition stand at Labour Party conference.

With dementia now the biggest killer in the UK, the work of organisations like Alzheimer's Society is more important than ever to end the inequality faced by people affected by the condition.

Dementia is among the most complex conditions that the social care system has to support, yet too many people with the condition are struggling to access good quality care at a fair price. Alzheimer's Society has been campaigning to fix dementia care to ensure that everyone with dementia receives good quality care when they need it. I will do my best to visit Alzheimer's Society at Labour Party Conference stand to hear more about the Fix Dementia Care campaign.

Thanks again to everyone who has contacted me about Alzheimer's Society.

Best wishes,
